MERAKI

Greetings!

The Editorial Board is now accepting submissions for its E-magazine, Meraki! There are no rigid restrictions on content production, however, some preferred ideas for its content are the following:-

- Crosswords, puzzles
- Articles on any topic the writer is interested in

These can range from feature articles to reports and beats.

- Book/ Movie/ Play Review
- Poetry

It doesn't need to follow a particular rhyme scheme or format, it could even just be free verse.

- Informative editorials (mental health, socio political and economical climate, fashion)
- Diary entries

These could entail the writer exploring different perspectives or simply sharing the writer's vantage point.

- Folklore

This could be a contemporary spin on a classic folklore tale, the aim being seeing the world of folklore reimagined through the eyes of a millennial.

- Artwork

This can include paintings, sketches, posters, comic strips, cartoons, digital art, graphics or any other creative piece.

- Photographs and videos

Captions are optional. However, if attached, it shouldn't exceed 30 words.

You may also submit videos and audios of songs you've covered, new recipes you've learnt, or even slam poetry pieces! While there is no word limit, we recommend your work be no longer than 700 words and place no restriction on the number of entries that can be sent. Please note that these guidelines endeavour to guide those who require help, the editorial board values creativity and encourages all creators to explore their skills in whichever manner they find fit!

All entries must be shared as google documents with the font being Times Neue Roman, the body being size 12 and the title being size 16 for the sake of uniformity.

Kindly share your work with meraki.sanskriti@gmail.com and ensure to grant us editing rights!

For further queries please email the aforementioned.

Good luck!

Regards

The Editorial Board
